Do you need help paying for burial or cremation expenses for your loved one?

Helpful Hearts Foundation was created by Randy Mundt, former owner of Stokes, Prock & Mundt Funeral Chapel and Cremation Society of Wisconsin, to help low-income families who have experienced the death of a loved one, to pay for funeral expenses. While the primary purpose is to help with the loss of a child, the application process is open to anyone in financial need, for final expenses in Eau Claire and surrounding counties. We are reaching out to help our community, during their time of greatest need.

Planning Your Funeral and Burial

By Becky Streeter

End of life discussions can be emotional, but necessary. One of the topics you should always discuss is funeral and burial preferences. Making arrangements in advance can save money and be emotionally relieving for the family, while also ensuring you receive exactly what you want in order to celebrate your life. Below are a few things to consider when pre-planning your funeral and burial.

1. Research a funeral director. Visit and meet with the staff at the funeral home to make sure they are a good fit for you and your loved ones. A funeral director will prepare many of the documents needed at the time of death. They will obtain the appropriate signatures on any paperwork, including the death certificate, and also notify Social Security. They often act as a liaison between family members, church clergy and cemetery staff.
2. Determine your wishes for your funeral. Do you want a service? Choose clergy to preside. Discuss with family members who might want to speak. If desired, select any meaningful music to be played and find musicians (perhaps in the family) to perform. Also make note if you would like donations to be made to a charity or foundation in your memory.

3. Choose burial or cremation. If you want a casket, put money down on one now or pre-pay completely. It can be as elaborate or simple as you want. If you wish to be cremated, record your wishes for your ashes—be sure to check environmental laws before asking your ashes to be spread in a certain location. You can also pre-purchase an urn if that is important to you, otherwise the family will usually be presented with your ashes in a cardboard box.
4. Purchase cemetery property. Choose a cemetery with a convenient location if your loved ones plan to visit. Determine if you would like to be buried next to a spouse, or have extra plots for children and their families. Decide what kind of marker or headstone you would like—design and pre-purchase this as well, checking with the cemetery staff that any necessary accommodations can be made.
5. Talk with your family. Discuss with your family if they have any specific ideas for your funeral or burial. Keep in mind that part of these rituals is to provide comfort and a sense of closure to those you leave behind. Something might seem superfluous to you, but have immense meaning to a loved one.

Caregivers Need Care Too

by Kristi Gay, freelance writer

Caregiving can be one of the biggest sacrifices of your life, depending on the length of time you're caregiving and the intensity of the help needed. I will share my story of caregiving for three months for my dad as he went through pancreatic cancer in 2020 along with caregiving for my mom ever since he passed as she grieves and navigates life alone for the first time, and my tips for caregivers based on my own experience.

My dad was only 67 years old when he was diagnosed with Stage 4 Pancreatic Cancer in 2020. My mom was 65 at the time and they had been married for 43 years and together since high school in Cornell, Wisconsin. Because of the shock and fear that both of my parents were going through trying to process this, I had to take over, taking pages of notes at every appointment and pressing doctors for more information or options. After two months of appointments and chemo, a bowel perforation landed us in the ER where we understood treatment options were over and entered hospice. Hospice is the best thing EVER (last year's entire article was dedicated to those angels on earth) but during that month of caretaking full-time while living with my parents, it was a mix of hosting guests, counseling, crying together, administering medicines, praying, massaging, serving food, and hosting more guests. It was emotionally exhausting, yet I couldn't have been more honored to be walking through it with the people I loved most.

These tips are not only from my own experience, but as a yoga teacher I was invited to the annual

Caregivers Conference several years put on by WITC in Rice Lake, WI, filled with education and pampering for the caregivers that need a refill to their own mental tanks.

1. Intentionally care for yourself once/day - go for a walk, meditate for 10 minutes, sit quietly with a coffee by a candle, take a hot bath. Something that you think of as a "treat". I went cross-country skiing for 20 minutes a day when I was caregiving and living with my parents, with the benefit of taking turns with my mom. But if you live alone with the person, you're caregiving, ask a neighbor, family member, or friend to come over once/day for an hour so you can have a break doing something just for you.
2. Give yourself grace. You're not perfect, nor is any doctor or nurse. So if something doesn't go the way you intended, know you are doing a great job and trying your best. Know the person you're caring for is so lucky to have you.
3. Eat and drink well. There is never a time this is more important than when you're caregiving since you need to stay healthy to be able to continue. During our caregiving phase the last thing we wanted was food or water. We wanted junk food and wine. But we had enough clarity to know that we had to eat healthy and drink water to stay healthy enough. Dad needed us, there was no time to get sick!

Thank you for what you're doing for your loved one.

Comprehensive Retirement Planning: A Key to Financial Security

By Cole Bruner, President of Buska Wealth Management

Retirement planning is essential for achieving financial independence and a comfortable lifestyle during retirement. It involves saving, managing risks, investing wisely, and ensuring a steady income after leaving the workforce. Here's how to approach retirement planning:

1. Setting Clear Retirement Goals

Begin by defining your retirement goals. Ask yourself: When do you want to retire? What lifestyle do you envision? Do you want to travel, maintain a certain standard of living, or cover healthcare costs? Clear goals will guide your savings and investment strategies, helping you determine how much money you'll need.

2. Assessing Your Current Financial Situation

Understand your current financial standing before creating a plan. Calculate your net worth, review income and expenses, and examine your debt obligations. Are you already saving for retirement through accounts like a 401(k) or IRA? Knowing where you stand will provide a baseline for the amount you need to save and invest to reach your goals.

3. Creating a Savings and Investment Strategy

With an understanding of your financial situation, start building a savings and investment strategy. The earlier you begin, the more your money can grow with compound interest. Contribute to retirement accounts, such as a 401(k), IRA, or Roth IRA, which offer tax advantages.

Choosing the right investments is crucial. Stocks, bonds, and real estate are common options, but the best mix depends on your risk tolerance, time horizon, and goals. Younger individuals can allocate more to stocks due to their longer time to recover from market fluctuations. Those closer to retirement may focus on more conservative, low-risk assets.

4. Planning for Healthcare Costs

Healthcare is a significant concern in retirement. While Medicare covers many healthcare expenses for those over 65, it doesn't cover everything. Plan for out-of-pocket costs, including premiums, copayments, and long-term care. Consider long-term care insurance or a health savings account (HSA) to cover additional medical expenses.

5. Tax Planning for Retirement

Understand the tax implications of your retirement savings and withdrawals. Contributions to 401(k)s and traditional IRAs are tax-deferred, meaning taxes are paid when funds are withdrawn. Roth IRAs offer tax-free withdrawals, provided certain conditions are met.

How you withdraw funds is also important. Consider withdrawing from taxable accounts first to allow tax-advantaged accounts to continue growing. A tax advisor can help minimize your tax burden.

6. Building an Estate Plan

A comprehensive retirement plan should also include estate planning. Create a will, set up trusts, and designate beneficiaries for your accounts to ensure your assets are distributed according to your wishes. Estate planning helps minimize estate taxes and avoid lengthy probate processes.

Comprehensive retirement planning involves more than just saving. It's about setting goals, understanding your financial situation, investing wisely, and planning for healthcare, taxes, and asset transfer after death. Starting early provides more options and flexibility, helping you create a secure and fulfilling retirement.

Being a Caregiver to a Sibling By Becky Streeter

When we think of caregivers, the first image that comes to mind is child-parent or spouse-to-spouse. These are perhaps the most common forms of caregiving, however, there are many siblings in this world that care for the physical, emotional and mental needs of their brothers or sisters. And sibling-sibling care is expected to become more of a norm in the future.

As we age, we accept the notion that we might someday have to care for an elderly parent, but the role of caregiving for a sibling is not always anticipated. It may come in the form of an aggressive diagnosis or a debilitating accident—something that leaves the sibling at the mercy of needing daily assistance. If there is no other family around to help, that duty can fall to a brother or sister.

Additionally, modern medicine is continually finding ways to increase life expectancy for those with mental and physical disabilities. Under normal circumstances, this is great. However, an aging parent who was the primary caregiver for their child in the past might find that they are no longer the best fit for that role. The role then often falls to the sibling.

Sibling-sibling caregiving comes with unique stressors. If the sibling still has cognitive function, they might experience a range of emotions from frustration and rage because of their new situation, to jealousy of the caregiving sibling's independence and health. The new caregiver can often feel forced into the role and simultaneously feel guilty for not wanting the responsibility. The need for care often occurs around midlife, when the caregiver sibling is unprepared financially and probably extremely busy with their own significant responsibilities such as family and work. The caregiver may be required to spend more time with their sibling than forming and developing other key relationships in their life.

If you know you might need to take on the role of primary caregiver for a sibling someday, planning is key. If possible, start having conversations with the current caregiver sooner rather than later. It can be uncomfortable to have end-of-life conversations, but when another life is dependent on the elderly caregiver, this conversation is essential. Family dynamics can be tough to mitigate, so consider bringing in a professional such as a therapist or healthcare advocate who can help keep everyone's best interests in mind.

Research group living facilities if that might be an option. So much depends on the illness, insurance, willingness of the sibling and financial means of those involved. Also keep in mind that abuse in a group home can be hard to detect, especially among those with intellectual disabilities.

Other resources for sibling caregiving include:

- Sibling Leadership Network - <https://siblingleadership.org>
- The Sibling Support Project - <https://siblingssupport.org>
- The Caregiver Action Network - <https://www.caregiveraction.org>
- The National Alliance for Caregiving - <https://www.caregiving.org>

As with any type of caregiving, make sure to care for yourself, too. You need and deserve support and rest. Find friends and groups who will listen to and support you. Give yourself a day off, or treat yourself to something nice, even if it's just alone time with a good book. And most importantly, give yourself grace.
